USPA NEWS - Field Marshal Asim Munir's Master Strategy Saves Middle East, Iran, USA & the World from Destruction
Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman and Pakistan's Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir have been credited with playing a significant role in efforts to de-escalate tensions between Iran and the United States, said Shazada Hayat, President UICF (UK) and international community welfare campaigner.
Prince Turki Al Faisal Al Saud, one of the Arab world's most prominent diplomatic and political powerful figures, and who is the grandson of the founder of Saudi Arabia King Abdulaziz, and son of the late King Faisal, praised the strategic leadership and diplomatic approach adopted by Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman during the recent period of heightened tensions and war between Iran and the United States.

Saudi Arabia faced considerable pressure from the United States, Israel and several regional allies to join military action against Iran. Despite these pressures and various provocations, the Saudi leadership chose a path of restraint and diplomacy rather than direct military involvement.

Prince Turki stated that Saudi Arabia's decision was guided by two key considerations. Firstly, he argued that the conflict between Iran and the United States had been encouraged by broader geopolitical objectives linked to Israeli interests in the region. Secondly, he warned that any direct Saudi involvement in military action against Iran could have triggered a devastating regional conflict involving multiple Gulf states.
Had Saudi Arabia entered the conflict, he suggested that Iran's response would likely have targeted not only American interests in the region but also key infrastructure across Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Qatar and Bahrain. Strategic facilities, including oil installations and desalination plants along the Gulf coast, could have become major targets, potentially resulting in severe economic disruption and humanitarian consequences throughout the Middle East.

the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Qatar and Bahrain. Strategic facilities, including oil installations and desalination plants along the Gulf coast, could have become major targets, potentially resulting in severe economic disruption and humanitarian consequences throughout the Middle East.
Prince Turki explained that such a scenario would have led to widespread destruction, heavy civilian casualties and long-term instability across the region. The patience, restraint and diplomatic policies pursued by Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman helped prevent a much larger conflict and reduced the risk of a catastrophic regional war.
Prince Turki expressed the outstanding role of mediation played by Pakistan's Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir must be credited at the highest level for his outstanding diplomatic efforts aimed at preventing further escalation. The Pakistani military leader is playing a pivotal and important part in maintaining dialogue between the key regional and international stakeholders during this fragile and dangerous crisis.

Shazada Hayat said,
Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir's close relations with both Saudi Arabia and Iran were valuable in facilitating communication at a time of rising extreme tensions. Pakistan's supreme commander Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir's engagement in extensive diplomacy and outreach, with his shuttle diplomacy, included visits to Iran and Saudi Arabia, where discussions focused on promoting stability and encouraging peaceful solutions through dialogue.

The Pakistani military chief also enjoyed the full support from President Xi Jinping of China in advancing his mediation efforts. Because of Pakistan's special bond with Iran, the Iranian Supreme Leader and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of Iran Mojtaba Hosseini Khamenei put his full trust and confidence in Pakistan's Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir, to achieve a just and fair outcome of the mediation between the USA and Iran. In addition, Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir engaged with senior decision makers in the United States, including President Donald Trump, urging restraint and warning of the potential consequences of a broader regional war.

Shazada Hayat went on to say, Concerns were raised that further escalation can have had far-reaching effects not only for Iran and the Middle East but also for global security, economic stability and international relations. The diplomatic initiatives undertaken by Saudi Arabia and Pakistan contributed to efforts that helped secure a period of reduced hostilities and created opportunities for continued dialogue.

The work of Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman and Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir demonstrated the importance of diplomacy, patience and international cooperation in addressing major geopolitical crises.
Many Pakistanis take pride in the recognition being given to Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir's diplomatic engagement, describing him as a military leader who also emerged as an influential statesman during a period of international uncertainty.
The combined efforts of Saudi and Pakistani leadership helped avert a potentially devastating conflict that can result in the loss of countless lives and severe destruction across the region.

The commitment to peace and stability has been acknowledged by world leaders and the international public, who are now calling for Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir to be bestowed the Nobel Peace Prize for his monumental and record-breaking role in promoting dialogue, restraint and international peace.
Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir's dedication and action to achieve peace and world order for which he will be remembered as one of the most important contributors to preventing a wider Middle Eastern war strived for preserving international peace,
